NATION & WORLD

Hawaii Gets Ready For Hurricane Lowell

HONOLULU, HAWAII — A big storm is coming to Hawaii. It is called Hurricane Lowell. Hawaii has had storms before this summer. People are getting ready now.

They are buying food and water. Schools may close if the storm gets close. Everyone hopes to stay safe.

Why it matters: Storms like this can be dangerous, so getting ready helps keep people safe.

GOVERNMENT

America Celebrated Labor Day

WASHINGTON — Monday was Labor Day. It is a holiday for workers. Government offices were closed. Labor Day started long ago.

Workers wanted a day to be honored. Now families use the day to rest and have fun. Many people had picnics or parades.

Why it matters: Labor Day helps us remember and thank all workers.

MONEY & WORK

Lots Of New Jobs In August

WASHINGTON — Many people got new jobs in August. About 162,000 people found work. That is more jobs than experts expected.

The number of people without jobs stayed the same. Workers also earned a little more money. This is good news for many families.

Why it matters: More jobs means more families can pay for things they need.

SPORTS

Giants Have A New Head Coach

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The New York Giants picked an exciting new head coach. His name is John Harbaugh. He used to coach the Baltimore Ravens for eighteen seasons.

This year marks the Giants' amazing 102nd season ever. Their first game arrives on September 13. They will challenge the Dallas Cowboys that day. Excited fans cannot wait to watch him coach.

Why it matters: New coaches often bring new plans and excitement for fans.

SOUTHERN MAINE

Sunny Labor Day, Then Changes Ahead

PORTLAND, MAINE — Labor Day was sunny in Maine. The sky was clear all day. Families enjoyed the sunshine outside.

But the weather will change soon. Rain and clouds may come this week. It is a good idea to bring a jacket. Check the forecast before you go outside.

Why it matters: Knowing the weather helps families plan fun and safe days.
